1. How are you enjoying the campaign so far?

I'm enjoying the campaign a lot. I like that we can finally sit down and spend some time together as friends just playing a game and having fun.

2. What is something you really liked about this arc?

I love when the party works together as a team to get stuff done. For example, when we all worked together to trick that guy to drink from his flask and poison himself just for us to fight an iron golem. I thought it was funny and I love how we worked together as a team to get that done.

3. What is something you really disliked about this arc?

Nothing really. It was fun and I can't wait for what's next.

4. What do you like about my DMing?

I love how every NPC is different. I also love how detailed maps are. I also love that you care so much about this campaign. Any other DM could just say fuck it and not put much effort into it. But you put your all into it. I respect that.

5. What do you dislike about my DMing?

I don't really have anything to criticize just yet.

6. How do you feel about your character?

I care about every character I make for DnD. I put a lot of energy and time into the backstory I make for them. I love how she's learning so much about other people. For example, Skalder the entire campaign so far was terrified to show Raella who he really was because of what she is. He thought she was a goody two shoes who follows the rules down to a T. But he opened up to her and showed her his true form and that really inspired Raella. Her whole life she had to hide who she was too. It can be really tiring sometimes. So the fact that he trusted her enough to show her he was a ghost gave her the guts to come out to Skalder. She respects Skalder. She values the trust he has in her. He kinda inspired her to be more open with people. I am interested to see her growth.

7. Is there something you want out of your character that you aren't getting right now?

I want to see her learn more from her magic. Like I truly want to see what a Cleric is capable of. I never get to a far enough level in a DnD campaign to truly see what a Cleric is capable of. I want to see how she can work with the undead. I want to use all her features and see what she can truly do. I think that's why she's talking to Kevin more. She's interested in what other magic users can do.

8. Is there something you want to happen in the campaign at some point?

Raella fighting undead. I want her to do cool Cleric shit with her magic. I also want to see the group working together as a team to solve things. Also Raella wants the Dueregar to fall apart. She's tired of them destroying people and ruining the world.

9. Any speculation on where the campaign might go from here?

I honestly have no idea. I'm excited to see where we go though.

10. Any other comments or questions?

Um, I kind of feel stifled in roleplaying Raella a little bit because of the situation with Maggie. I kind of felt as though I shouldn't have had Raella be gay. Or I wouldn't have had any issues if Raella wasn't gay. I appreciate the research you gave me about how certain races feel about LGBTQ people and stuff. But I feel as though Raella could have learned that on her own through more interactions with more people. I know this feeling will pass. It's just how I am feeling about it right now. I honestly genuinely do not want to make anyone feel uncomfortable in the party. However, if someone in the party has issues with Raella being gay then that's not on me. That's on them. I was taught that you cannot be upset with someone's roleplay. I remember in another campaign there was a guy who made a character who constantly made sexual comments toward my character. It was borderline sexual harassment. However, it was his character not him as a person. So I wasn't upset. My character was pissed as all fuck. However, I wasn't upset because he wasn't doing it to me. IDK I'M RAMBLING.....aaahhhhhh
